Advanced Analytical Consulting Group Opens Washington, DC Area Office

October 3, 2011 – Advanced Analytical Consulting Group, Inc. \(AACG\), the economic, statistical, and computing consulting firm, is pleased to announce the opening of its Washington, DC area office at 2000 North 15th Street in Arlington, VA.

AACG's Arlington office will support the company's existing work in Washington, DC including litigation related projects, focusing on antitrust, securities, class action, labor, telecommunications, healthcare and other industries. The AACG office in Arlington will also support AACG's research for government agencies such as the Department of Labor, Department of Justice, and the Securities and Exchange Commission. AACG currently also has an office in Massachusetts which serves clients throughout the United States, Canada, Great Britain, Mexico and the United Arab Emirates.

“Our DC area office is an important step in AACG's continued expansion of service offerings, experts, and geographic locations. Our Arlington location will help us attract and support additional expert economists, statisticians, programmers, and strategy and operations consultants that are the catalyst for all our services,” said Dr. Daniel S. Levy, AACG Founder. “We will also use the DC office to intensify our connection to existing clients in DC and make potential clients aware of our diverse offerings. AACG will continue to provide the best experts available to clients around the globe. The new talent we will house in the DC area will provide support and expertise to our international clientele.”

All AACG experts can be reached through any of AACG's corporate locations. In the DC area, AACG is located at
